Released the 2nd Wednesday of every month, the Thomson Reuters Ipsos Global Primary Consumer Sentiment Index (PCSI) measures eleven key conditions as perceived by primary consumers in 24 countries and 7 regions to deliver the most comprehensive data set available on current and future economic conditions, intentions and expectations.

Available exclusively from Thomson Reuters, the Primary Consumer Sentiment Index provides monthly, global data back to 2002 in the United States, 2005 in Brazil and 2010 in other markets. Ipsos reaches out to citizens in 24 countries to gain insight into the current state of their country's economy for a total global perspective.

THE DATA

The Thomson Reuters Ipsos Monthly Global Primary Consumer Sentiment Index is a composite index of 11 questions that run monthly via online polls in the countries surveyed. The data output is based on the views of a fresh, randomly selected representative sample each month of primary consumers aged 18-64 in the US and Canada and aged 16-62 in other countries. Primary consumers are a comparable, standardized and weighted group in each country based on a minimum level of education and income.

THE SERIES

Users are able to gain access to the underlying questions and responses in more than 700 times series for an additional fee.

The eleven questions capture consumer views on:

1. Current overall economic situation in country
2. Current state of economy in local area
3. Expectations of local economy in six months
4. Current personal financial situation rating
5. Expectations of personal financial situation in six months
6. Comfort in making major purchases
7. Comfort in making other household purchases
8. Confidence about job security
9. Confidence in ability to invest in the future
10. Experience with job loss as a result of economic conditions
11. Expectations of job loss as a result of economic conditions

ADDITIONAL IN-DEPTH ANALYSIS OF CONSUMER SENTIMENT IN ALL 24 COUNTRIES

Users can access over 20,000 powerful, detailed demographic series about the respondents, covering gender, age ranges, employment status, education, marital status, household income, and if the respondent is the chief income earner. This detailed analysis allows users to understand consumer opinions in differing demographics.
